TITLE: HOME LEARNING

ADOPTED: May 10, 2010

REVISED:

	130. HOME LEARNING
1. Purpose	Home learning is a valuable tool in the educational process. Used appropriately, it can provide practice and reinforcement for previous instruction, enrichment instruction, provide opportunity to develop student responsibility, culminating activities, and involve parents/guardians more directly in supporting the learning process. For these reasons, students shall be given regular and appropriate home learning activities at all levels; elementary, middle, and high school. Home learning shall be assigned with consideration of the maturity level of the student, the organization of the school, and other activities in which the student might be involved.
2. Guidelines Title 22 Sec. 12.2	Each student shall be responsible for completing home learning assignments as directed. Home learning shall be planned and evaluated with respect to its purpose, appropriateness, and completion time. The demand of home learning upon the students' time shall be consistent with the best interests of the students in regards to other valuable experiences to be gained outside of school. Home learning should not interfere with the proper development of the student's health, nor should it interfere with the student assuming responsibilities in the home. Home learning will not be assigned as a form of punishment.
130-AR	In order to coordinate the assignment of regular, appropriate home learning, at the elementary, middle, and high school levels, each school shall develop a home learning plan which establishes home learning procedures and expectations.
